EBONY

New deep, dark red

GRANDIFLORA

Hybridized by Gordon J. Von Abrams

Velvety blooms, dusky, comely, unfold from an abundance of short, pointed buds. High-centered medium-sized flowers appear singly and in clusters—as many as 42 blooms have been counted on a single candelabra stem. The tall, vigorous bush is covered with large, glossy foliage. Outstanding in color, profusion of bloom and vigorous growth.

CORONADO

Bright New Bi-Color Hybrid Tea—

SILVER MEDAL WINNER in Rome, Geneva, Denmark

Hybridized by Gordon J. Von Abrams

Pointed buds, large and full, red flushed with copper and orange, appear on long, straight stems, unfolding into very large, high-centered flowers of 40 to 50 petals. The inside is rose to spectrum red, with yellow beneath, very bright and attractive in full bloom, with good flower form. Shining, glossy deep green foliage covers a tall, full, very vigorous bush. Red-gold and gorgeous—a striking new rose.

Bi-Color Hybrid Tea in Warm Pink

New and unique bi-color in two warm, rich shades—soft, salmon pink on the inner surface, with a contrasting rosy-crimson beneath. The flower is classic and beautiful in form, medium size, borne on a long, straight stem, ideal for cutting. The plant is vigorous and free-branching, with luxuriant foliage which has shown an exceptional resistance to mildew. Ornamental in the garden, in or out of bloom.

RED RUFFLES

New Floribunda

Hybridized by Gordon J. Von Abrams

Unusually attractive in flower form, Red Ruffles blooms profusely from very dark red pointed buds into wide-open deeply ruffled flowers of 45 petals, delightfully different for arrangements. Vigorous and bushy, with leathery foliage flushed with red along the veins—a constant source of long-lasting cut flowers.

Color for 1961

Bountiful Pink Grandiflora

Delicious delicate pink buds cover the large, vigorous bush in great profusion... 100 buds at once are not unusual on the mature plant. Medium size, semi-double flowers range through pastel shades of pink, from dark to light apple blossom tones, varying with the weather. Neat and compact foliage provides the perfect background for the heavy flower clusters. Unique for the garden and as a source of cut flowers that blend readily with most interiors.

Peterson & Dering

How you can select better roses

Peterson & Dering's Rose Catalog has been carefully prepared to help you select the roses best suited for your garden, general landscaping, and for cut flowers. Each type of rose has been segregated by color, with the flower characteristics, height of bush and ARS rating (when available) listed conveniently with the name. Where the rose has won an All-America award, the AARS insignia distinguishes it.

The listings by color will be very helpful in ordering for massed plantings; the height and habit of the bush will guide you in spacing and planning your plantings. Climbers, grandifloras and floribundas all have special uses in landscaping as well as in the rose bed. The varieties having long stems and long-lasting blooms are best for cut flowers.

Please read the descriptions carefully, decide which roses are right for you, and fill out the order blank enclosed. The roses are listed alphabetically on the order blank under the correct classification. Use the postage-free envelope to send us your order now for the best and most complete selection. We will ship for arrival at the proper planting time in your area.

What the Ratings Mean

The ratings in this book are taken from the American Rose Society 1960 Guide. These ratings are made after the rose has been tested extensively in different parts of the country, and a high national rating means the rose is likely to perform well in growth, foliage and bloom almost anywhere. A perfect rose would be rated *10; *9 to *10 is outstanding; *8 to *8.9 is excellent; *7 to *7.9 is good; *6 to *6.9 is fair; *5 to *5.9 questionable and below *5 is poor.

A few varieties are too new to be rated, and a few others are not rated but have proven very popular.

Better Roses Through Research

The plant patent number means that the rose has been developed by an individual or a firm, usually through years of hybridizing, and the rose has then been patented. The rights to its propagation are owned by the patentee.

Peterson & Dering's hybridizing and research program is dedicated to developing stronger plants with greater disease resistance and tolerances to cold, and to producing blooms lovely in color and beautiful in form.

We are the only rose hybridizers in the Pacific Northwest. Applying biochemistry to the improvement of roses and their pigmentation, in 1949 we built a complete laboratory, greenhouse and test garden with Gordon J. Von Abrams as director of research. From our experiments have come the wonderful "Pink Favorite," the new red grandiflora "Ebony" and many other lovely new roses. They are identified in this book by P&D.

Twenty years of research have gone into development of our "Super-Strain" multiflora root to provide sturdy understock for the roses we grow.

Before being offered for sale, our roses are tested in over 50 gardens in the U. S., including Hartford, Conn.; Tulsa, Okla.; Columbus, O., and Portland, Ore., and in England, Spain, Italy, France, Germany, Switzerland, Holland and Denmark.

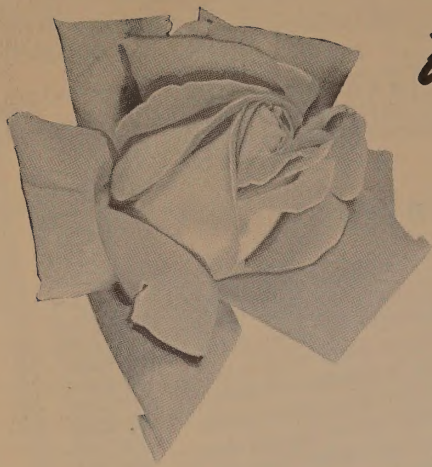

Through research, budding, growing, harvesting and shipping, we strive to provide you with top quality roses—"The Finest Anywhere."

Above is a field of beautiful Peterson & Dering tree roses—tall, bushy and well balanced. They are hardy and transplant easily because they have strong, flexible, fibrous root systems. P&D tree roses are budded 36" tall on Super-Strain multiflora roots and stems to assure you sturdy plants for your garden.

ROSE CULTURE

FERTILIZE: Roses need regular feeding. Newly Planted Roses—Begin feeding in the spring when plants show 2"-3" of new growth. Established Roses—Apply well-rotted cow or sheep manure in early spring, usually about April 1. Continue at monthly intervals until fall.

WATER thoroughly once a week during dry season, in early morning or late evening. Use soil soaker, water bubbler, wand or hose, and water the earth, not the plants. Do not wet rose foliage—it encourages mildew and spreads disease. Do not water every day.

CULTIVATE around the bushes by working the earth every 10 days or so. We recommend a 5-pronged hoe to pulverize the soil without cutting feeder roots. Hoe top layer of soil to 2" deep.

MULCH will keep down weeds, hold moisture, cool the soil and prevent splashback from water and rain. Spread peat, bark dust, corn cobs or other light material 2"-3" deep around rose bushes. No further cultivating is needed after mulching.

SPRAY or DUST at least once a week during the spring and summer for good foliage and healthy roses. Modern chemicals kill the bugs, keep down disease and help your bushes produce better blooms. Be sure to cover underside of leaves where the disease starts. Choose a combination insecticide-fungicide for greatest protection and easy application.

CUTTING BLOOMS. Your roses will reward your care with blooms the first year. Cut only a few of the first buds and blooms. As the bushes grow bigger and stronger, a few taken here and there will do no harm. Cut with moderate stems at first, at a 45° angle just above a set of leaves. In the fall, take as many blooms as you wish. The second year there will be more spring blooms and you may cut more flowers. Always leave two sets of leaves on the stub. Keep bushes neat by snipping off spent flowers 1/2" above the first set of 5 leaves. This will encourage new growth and more blooms.

WINTER PROTECTION: After the first frosts, cut canes back to about 24" high to prevent wind whipping. Hill earth 8"-12" around base of bushes. When freezing is over in the spring, uncover, remove dead wood and old canes, open center of bush to the sun. Leave 3 to 5 canes, pruned 6"-10" high. Clean up the bed, fertilize, and watch your roses grow.

CLIMBERS BLOOM from old wood, so do not prune. Remove dead wood in early spring; undesirable canes may be removed after the first blooming.
